

Kickstart Ventures targets 12 startup investments

By Beatriz Marie D. Cruz
Reporter

KICKSTART Ventures, Inc., the corporate venture capital arm of Globe Telecom, Inc., is on track to fund at least 12 startups by the end of the year, with a growing focus on electronic commerce and artificial intelligence (AI).

“We invested in seven companies in total this year,” Joan Yao, general partner at Kickstart Ventures, told BusinessWorld in an interview. “These are follow-on investments.”

The firm has backed startups across industries such as cybersecurity, food and beverage, e-commerce, telecommunications, AI and business-to-business e-commerce.

Since its founding in 2012, Kickstart has invested P2.15 billion in Philippine startups. Its portfolio now includes about 70 local and foreign companies, among them Pickup Coffee, coins.ph, Kumu, Skillshare, RuralNet and edamama.

The venture firm said its local portfolio has generated about 600 jobs and raised $305 million (P17.4 billion) in follow-on funding. Five Philippine startups in Kickstart’s portfolio have since expanded overseas, while 17 of its funded companies have entered the Philippine market.

Kickstart primarily invests in early- and early-growth stage startups that aim to solve real-world problems. For the rest of 2025, the firm is looking more closely at AI-driven ventures.

“A lot of the opportunities we’re looking at right now is in the theme of ‘from automation to augmentation,’” Ms. Yao said. “We’re looking at how AI can augment human capability, and how AI tools can help make work more efficient in different business contexts.” She noted that investment prospects include startups working on financial inclusion, healthcare solutions and climate resilience.

The funding push comes amid a downturn in Philippine startup equity financing. A joint report by Kickstart and Singaporean business news platform DealStreetAsia showed that startup equity funding in the country had fallen 55% to $86.4 million as of end-June from a year earlier. By deal value, the country trailed Singapore ($1.21 billion), Vietnam ($275 million) and Malaysia ($196 million).

It only surpassed Indonesia ($78 million) and Thailand ($10 million), while Cambodia did not disclose figures.

Across Southeast Asia, startup equity investment fell by 20.7% year on year to $1.85 billion, the lowest in six years.

Davao chili sauce brand eyes Manila factory

By Almira Louise S. Martinez
Reporter

DAVAO-BASED chili sauce maker Ayana’s Siling Kinamayo is seeing stronger demand in Metro Manila as it boosts its participation in trade fairs and food expos in the National Capital Region.

“In Manila, the demand is really high compared with the Davao region,” Edlun A. Ferrando, owner of Ayana’s Siling Kinamayo, told BusinessWorld in an interview. “In Davao City, we also supply to the malls, that’s why it’s a bit saturated.”

Mr. Ferrando credited the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) for helping the brand enter the Manila market through free trade fair slots. “That’s the No. 1 source. People got to know our brand, and we were able to enter the market because of the trade fairs.”

The chili enterprise traces its roots to the aftermath of Super Typhoon Pablo in 2012, which devastated farms across Mindanao and caused P8.5 billion worth of farm damage, based on the Philippine Crop Insurance Corp. The banana sector bore the heaviest losses, followed by rice, corn and coconut farms.

“The only thing that sprouted was the chili,” Mr. Ferrando said. “That’s the only thing they were able to produce. That’s why the farmers took advantage of it.”

To aid recovery, the Trade department rolled out livelihood training for affected residents. Mr. Ferrando’s wife Maricel, who had cooking experience from their former eatery, joined the program and showcased her chili sauce recipe.

“They discovered that she knows how to make chili sauce...so the DTI told her to focus on that,” he said.

Production started modestly with 50 bottles per batch using a household blender that often overheated. Today, Ayana’s produces 1,000 to 1,500 bottles daily across five variants, including its flagship Siling Kinamayo made with native chilies, and Dare Devil Sauce featuring Carolina Reaper peppers.

Flavor preferences differ by region, Mr. Ferrando said.

“In Manila, the people there are fond of something sweet,” he said. “In Mindanao, in the western part, they are fond of something spicy because of our Muslim brothers. In the Visayas, they are not fond of spicy food.”

“It depends on the taste of the people, that’s where we base our flavors,” he added.
